

Call for Papers

Conference

Educational systems: Inequalities, Labour Markets and Civic Engagement

Keynotes:

Eric Hanushek, Stanford University

Hans-Peter Blossfeld, European University Institute

13-14 February 2014, Amsterdam, the Netherlands

In this conference we aim to bring together scientists from different social sciences, including sociology, economics and education, to present and discuss work on how characteristics of educational systems are related to various sorts of inequalities and patterns of allocation. Topics could include the influence of institutional characteristics on social inequalities, efficient learning, school-to-work transitions, and civic engagement.

Please go to the website www.amcis.uva.nl/educationalsystems-conference2014 to register and upload your abstract. Deadline of submissions is 30 November 2013. Before 15 December we will inform whether your paper is accepted for the conference. There is only a limited number of places.

There are no costs associated to the conference, except for your own travel, accommodation and subsistence costs.

The conference is organized by the Amsterdam Centre for Inequality Studies, on behalf of a consortium of researchers from the University of Amsterdam, Maastricht University, and Erasmus University: Herman van de Werfhorst, Jaap Dronkers, Sjoerd Karsten, Rolf van der Velden, and Dinand Webbink.